

For Nonprofit, Civic and Community Organizations

Community Project Grants help your organization to provide creative public humanities programming on topics of interest in your community. New Hampshire Humanities seeks proposals that actively engage participants, present diverse perspectives, pose questions and explore ideas openly and broadly, and encourage people to think about how the subject matter relates to their own lives and communities. New Hampshire Humanities awards Mini Grants of up to $1,000 six times a year and Major Grants of up to $10,000 four times a year. See the table of grant deadlines on our website www.nhhumanities.org/grants.

What is New Hampshire Humanities?

Established in 1974, New Hampshire Humanities is an independent, nonprofit organization supported by private individuals, corporations, and foundations, and by the National Endowment for the Humanities. We connect people with ideas.

What are the Humanities?

The humanities are fields of inquiry that explore the heart of the human experience. They look at what humans have created, debated, thought, done, and believed throughout recorded time. These fields include history, literature, and philosophy as well as archaeology, ethics, jurisprudence, comparative religion and culture, languages and linguistics, and the history and interpretation of the arts and sciences. Humanities skills - such as reading, listening, critical thinking, analysis and discussion - help people to be informed, imaginative, and engaged.

What do Community Project Grants fund?

Successful proposals share three active ingredients: public participation, humanities experts, and humanities content!

- Humanities Experts: Whether involved as an invited speaker or as an integral member of a planning team, humanities experts strengthen a project by providing broad perspective and in-depth knowledge. Trained scholars, they have formal academic backgrounds such as a Master's or PhD in a humanities discipline, or specialized knowledge developed through professional experience or immersion in a particular cultural tradition. Graduate students in a relevant humanities discipline may also qualify. Identifying possible humanities experts is one way New Hampshire Humanities can assist early in the planning of a project.
- Humanities Content: What does it mean to be human? What matters in life? What can we learn from our own past, and from other societies? Successful proposals identify essential questions of meaning inherent in the subject matter of the project. They provide opportunities for people to learn and reflect about their world and themselves from the exploration of open questions. Whatever the topic, the primary purpose of the program must be inquiry and not advocacy.

Who is eligible for funding?

Funding is available to tax exempt organizations serving New Hampshire including libraries, historical societies, museums, community service groups, colleges, schools and other nonprofits. An applicant organization must provide a copy of its IRS Determination Letter or other evidence of nonprofit status, its federal tax identification number, a DUNS number, and register on SAM.gov. Grant recipients may not apply for more than one grant at a time or for an additional grant if any reports are overdue. Individuals are not eligible for Community Project Grants.

What financial contribution does my organization have to make to the project?

All Community Project Grants are 1:1 matching grants. This means that the amount requested from New Hampshire Humanities must be no more than half of what goes into the project. Cash expenditures and in-kind contributions by the applicant organization or third parties must make up the other half or more. The cash portion of the applicant's contribution must equal or exceed 10% of the grant request.
